There are times when natural siblings cannot be placed together. When brothers and sisters do not see each other everyday, this loss can be quite significant to each child's treatment process and life script.

In addition to Sibling Retreats, Branching Out provides visits that accommodate for various time frames. This further honours the importance of the sibling relationship.

There are both structured and non-structured activities to provide the sibling groups with self-esteem and family-building opportunities. A Play Therapist Intern and other Clinical Staff are available to help children discuss any feelings of loss that arise.

Each participant will receive a detailed report, if requested.
